

A CUP OF COMPASSION SERIES

The Companion Workbook

Six books. One place to reflect, practice, discuss, and make compassion visible.

Make room for the work that lasts.

This workbook is a companion for the six books in A Cup of Compassion. It is designed for a quiet morning, a kitchen-table conversation, a small group, or any moment when you are ready to turn a good insight into a faithful next step.

- 1 Read one book or chapter before you begin.
- 2 Answer honestly. This is a place for clarity, not performance.
- 3 Choose one action you can carry into the week.
- 4 Return to the notes that still feel unfinished.

A WORD ABOUT PRIVACY

Write only what you are comfortable keeping in this workbook. The Legacy Inventory is a planning guide, not a place for account numbers, passwords, or private legal documents.

The central idea

Compassion is a practice that can be learned, noticed, and made visible.

KEY CONCEPTS

- Learned care
- Self-compassion
- Presence
- Service

OPENING THOUGHT

What is one sentence from this book that you want to remember when the week gets busy?

Reflect honestly

01 Who first showed you what compassion looked like?

02 Where does compassion come naturally to you?

03 Where do you find it harder to offer?

04 What would it look like to offer yourself the same patience?

Put it into practice

THIS WEEK'S PRACTICE

Try the forty-second practice: choose one person today, put distractions aside, and give them your full attention before you offer advice.

MAKE A SIMPLE PLAN

The action I will take:

The person or place it concerns:

The day and time I will begin:

NOTES FROM THE WEEK

Talk it through

01 What makes care feel real rather than performative?

02 How can a family turn compassion into a repeatable habit?

03 What one act of service can this group make visible this week?

MY COMMITMENT

Before our next conversation, I will make compassion visible by...

The central idea

Compassion may begin as a capacity, but it becomes character through choice and practice.

KEY CONCEPTS

- Nature and nurture
- Choice
- Modeling
- Daily practice

OPENING THOUGHT

What is one sentence from this book that you want to remember when the week gets busy?

Reflect honestly

01 What messages about caring did you receive as a child?

02 Whose example has shaped your idea of kindness?

03 What compassionate response do you want to make more automatic?

04 How can you model that response for someone younger?

Put it into practice

THIS WEEK'S PRACTICE

Notice one moment this week when a quick judgment arrives. Pause, ask what you do not yet know, and choose curiosity before conclusion.

MAKE A SIMPLE PLAN

The action I will take:

The person or place it concerns:

The day and time I will begin:

NOTES FROM THE WEEK

Talk it through

01 Can compassion be taught without being forced?

02 Which environments help compassion grow?

03 What does a compassionate correction sound like?

MY COMMITMENT

Before our next conversation, I will make compassion visible by...

The central idea

Legacy is not only what is left behind. It is the care taken to prepare people, stories, and plans.

KEY CONCEPTS

- Intentional planning
- Family stories
- Preparation
- Generational care

OPENING THOUGHT

What is one sentence from this book that you want to remember when the week gets busy?

Reflect honestly

01 What do you want your family to know that no document can say?

02 What responsibility are you ready to make easier for someone else?

03 Which item, story, or tradition needs a written explanation?

04 Who should know where your important papers are kept?

Put it into practice

THIS WEEK'S PRACTICE

Choose one legacy task: label a photograph, write the story behind an heirloom, or make a list of the people who should be called first.

MAKE A SIMPLE PLAN

The action I will take:

The person or place it concerns:

The day and time I will begin:

NOTES FROM THE WEEK

Talk it through

01 Why do families postpone preparation?

02 How can planning be an expression of love rather than fear?

03 What conversation needs a gentler beginning?

MY COMMITMENT

Before our next conversation, I will make compassion visible by...

The central idea

Compassion and clear boundaries belong together. Love that lifts does not require self-abandonment.

KEY CONCEPTS

- Clarity
- Boundaries
- Patterns
- Self-respect

OPENING THOUGHT

What is one sentence from this book that you want to remember when the week gets busy?

Reflect honestly

01 Where are you carrying a responsibility that is not yours?

02 What pattern deserves more attention than a promise?

03 What do you need to stay present without losing yourself?

04 What boundary would be both kind and clear?

Put it into practice

THIS WEEK'S PRACTICE

Write one sentence you can use this week: 'I care about you, and I need this conversation to be respectful.' Practice saying it calmly.

MAKE A SIMPLE PLAN

The action I will take:

The person or place it concerns:

The day and time I will begin:

NOTES FROM THE WEEK

Talk it through

01 How can a boundary be compassionate?

02 What is the difference between helping and rescuing?

03 Who can offer wise support when a situation feels unclear?

MY COMMITMENT

Before our next conversation, I will make compassion visible by...

The central idea

Strong relationships are built through small promises, honest communication, and daily repair.

KEY CONCEPTS

- Reliability
- Repair
- Listening
- Shared practice

OPENING THOUGHT

What is one sentence from this book that you want to remember when the week gets busy?

Reflect honestly

01 What makes you feel seen in a relationship?

02 Which small promise can you keep more consistently?

03 How do you want conflict to sound in your home?

04 What appreciation have you not said out loud?

Put it into practice

THIS WEEK'S PRACTICE

Make one specific commitment for the next seven days. Keep it small enough to honor and meaningful enough to be felt.

MAKE A SIMPLE PLAN

The action I will take:

The person or place it concerns:

The day and time I will begin:

NOTES FROM THE WEEK

Talk it through

01 What does repair look like after someone is hurt?

02 How can partners protect one another's reputation?

03 Which daily rhythm helps connection survive a busy week?

MY COMMITMENT

Before our next conversation, I will make compassion visible by...

The central idea

Companionship is compassion that stays: showing up, remembering, and making room for one another over time.

KEY CONCEPTS

- Presence
- Friendship
- Belonging
- Showing up

OPENING THOUGHT

What is one sentence from this book that you want to remember when the week gets busy?

Reflect honestly

01 Who has stayed present through an important season of your life?

02 How do you know when someone needs a check-in?

03 What ordinary gesture says 'you are not alone' to you?

04 Who could use that gesture from you this week?

Put it into practice

THIS WEEK'S PRACTICE

Choose one person and make a specific plan to show up: a call, a meal, a walk, a card, or a visit that is not rushed.

MAKE A SIMPLE PLAN

The action I will take:

The person or place it concerns:

The day and time I will begin:

NOTES FROM THE WEEK

Talk it through

01 What makes companionship different from casual contact?

02 How can communities make belonging easier?

03 What kind of friend do you want to become?

MY COMMITMENT

Before our next conversation, I will make compassion visible by...

One step that makes the next step easier

A compassionate legacy is built in ordinary actions: a conversation started, a story recorded, a document located, a person asked for help. Choose one meaningful next step and make it visible.

The conversation I will start:

The item or story I will document:

The person I will invite into the plan:

The date I will revisit this work:

Keep on giving. Keep on being.

Return to these pages whenever compassion needs a clearer shape:
in your home, your relationships, your community, and the legacy
you are building.
